Los Angeles, CA {November 2, 2010} In celebration of Professor Holo, students have created work inspired by "Yousuf Karsh: Regarding Heroes," the exhibit currently on view at the USC Fisher Museum. Working in dialogue with the Fisher, "RE:VIEW," reflects upon Karsh's photography while simultaneously offering a strikingly contemporary view of USC students and their visions of twenty-first century portraiture, conceptions of heroism, and the subjectivity of images. The exhibition will run through February 3, 2011

The featured student work includes photography, painting, and sculpture, all of which will be available for purchase. Prices will be available on request.

The USC Hillel Art Gallery is committed to presenting challenging and enlightening exhibitions dedicated to the pursuit of religious and cultural diversity. For more information, contact Sarah Brin, Director of the USC Hillel Gallery, at sbrin@usc.edu.
